Homer S. Cummings Praises
Woodrow Wilson in Address at Christian College.

SCORNS PARTISANSHIP

Says Republicans Oppose the League Because It Is a Democratic Measure.

Keynotes by Mr. Cummings.

"The matter of selecting a President is a solemn and serious thing. No man has the right to vote before asking for divine guidance that his ballot may be cast for the right."

"The fundamental difference between the Republican and the Democratic parties is that the Republicans are interested in material things while the Democrats are interested in human rights."

"One reason why the Democratic administration was able to do so much in such a short time is that the Republicans had done so little in such a long time."

"Every time you make a reform, you make enemies of those who profit by the conditions preceding it."

"Under the Republican regime, the financial situation became a sort of seven-league game or cycle of panics which came at regular intervals."

"This extraordinary narration sounds like a platform of promises. The sober fact is that it is an inadequate recital of actual achievements."

"A word for Mexico is concealed in the Republican platform and in Senator Lodge's keynote speech."

"I'll tell you why the Republicans object to the League of Nations: it was offered by a Democratic President."

"Only a small American with a small heart and a smaller mind can bear to tarnish the American flag for partisan interests."

Three times, about 1,200 citizens of Columbia and Boone County, both men and women, rose to their feet and cheer when the name of Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States and father of the League of Nations, was mentioned by Homer S. Cummings, former chairman of the Democratic national committee, during his speech in the Christian College Auditorium last night.

From the time the speaker was introduced by E. W. Stephens until he delivered his eulogy on Woodrow Wilson and concluded by appealing to American voters, he was frequently interrupted with yells and shouts of approval.

"How do you do, Mr. Cummings?" was one of the songs with which Christian College girls seated in the balcony greeted the speaker. Their first song was "Dixie." Responding to cheers, they sang "Christian." "Take Me Back to Old C. C." and other songs written as parodies to popular tunes such as "Swanee," "Take Me to the Land of Jazz," and the like.

THE INCOME TAX LAW, the federal reserve system, child-labor legislation, a nonpartisan Tariff Commission, farm loans and a consideration of labor as expressed in numerous acts were cited as progressive legislative achievements of the Democratic party.

"During the months which intervened between March 4, 1913, and the outbreak of the World War, we placed upon the statute books of our country more effective, constructive and remedial legislation than the Republican party had placed there in a generation," the speaker asserted.

"Labor was given its Magna Carta of liberty. Moreover, for the first time in the history of the Nation, a Secretary of Labor has sat in the Cabinet of the President."

"Trade relations have been extended. New fields have been opened in Alaska. The administration has encouraged Pan-Americanism. And the broad cast on international waters has come back to us a hundredfold."

BANK FAILURES ELIMINATED

Mr. Cummings passed on to a discussion of the federal reserve banking system. He said that the opponents of the League of Nations—Lodge, Root, Snoot and Harding—were also opposed to the new banking law. He predicted an increase in labor unrest, an aggressive policy toward Mexico and a return to the old banking system if Harding is elected.

"There was an average of one bank failure in the United States every three weeks for forty years under the Republican system," said Mr. Cummings. "After the enactment of the Federal Reserve Law, there were only four bank failures in 1915, three the next year, one in 1917, 18 and none in 1919."

the League at first and quoted Lodge himself as having said that an attempt to make a separate peace would "brand us with everlasting dishonor."

"Nothing that partisanship can suggest can take away from America the glory of the last six years. It is impossible for the critics of the administration to point out how, within the limits of human possibility, the war could have been won more promptly or with less loss of American life. During the progress of the war, President Wilson, more clearly than any other statesman, defended the purposes of the conflict and gave to our cause a spiritual power which made our material forces irresistible; and when the end drew near, the people of all lands looked to the American President to formulate the terms upon which hostilities were to cease....

WILSON IMMORTAL

"In one sense it is quite immaterial what people say about the President. Nothing we can say can add or detract from the time that will flow down the unending channels of history. Generations yet unborn will look back to this man who led a people through troubled ways out of the valleys of selfishness up to the mountain tops of achievement and honor, and there showed them the promised land of freedom and safety and fraternity. Whether history records that they entered in or turned their backs upon the vision, it is all one with him—he is immortal."

"When we entered the war, it was primarily for selfish purposes; but in the background of our effort stood the knowledge that world civilization was at stake. World civilization is still at stake, and in some ways, even more in danger than it was during the war. America cannot tolerate international chaos. We have won the moral leadership of the world. It would be a blunder, incalculable in extent, to surrender or to forfeit that leadership. We cannot afford, even from the most selfish standpoint, to make of America a slacker nation, attempting to draw back with the task half-finished. We must, of necessity, therefore, go forward. Moreover, the solution of our domestic problems, in any fundamental way, cannot proceed until there is a stable international status, and until our relationship to the rest of the world has been determined."

SENATE SUBTRACKED RECONSTRUCTION

"We are concerned with the high cost of living, the relationship of the railroads and other public utilities to the government, the share that labor is to have in the direction and profits of industry, and many other questions of reconstruction which have developed as the result of the war....

"During the last days of the retiring campaign, a senatorial filibuster was deliberately planned and effectively carried out. This filibuster hampered the proper development of the railroads, eliminated appropriations calculated to facilitate the demobilization of the army, prevented the passage of the Water Power Bill, the Housing Bill, the Homestead Bill, interfered with the Federal Employment Bureau, and in other vital ways slowed up all the processes of government. The purpose of the filibuster was to force the immediate calling of an extra session of Congress designed to embarrass the President while he was abroad, and incidentally to postpone the consideration of many of the pending reconstruction measures, so that an incoming Republican Congress could sell them."

A comparison of the Democratic record in Congress with that of the Republicans since 1918 was given. Speaking of the war record, Mr. Cummings said: "Two things we didn't waste, time and lives.... It is better to prepare for a long war and make it short than to prepare for a short war and make it long."

U. S. NOT AFRAID OF HER FATE

Emphasizing what a long war can cost in lives, the speaker said that if the ghosts of the soldiers who died in the World War should march across the stage of Christian College auditorium four abreast, it would take a hundred days and nights for them to pass in review.

"Have we made a slaughter-house of the world for nothing? Shall these men have been sacrificed in vain?"

In conclusion, Mr. Cummings said, "America has set her face to the future. Irreversible impulses are at work which are destined to carry her to a higher place of honor and power than she has ever known. The American people have never been afraid of their fate and have never hung back before great projects. The instrumentalities afforded by the Democratic party is available to the hands of a forward-looking people, and no other instrument will properly or effectively serve their purpose."

CUMMINGS SPEAKS AGAIN

Address by Noted Democrat at Court-house This Afternoon.

Arguments favoring the League of Nations and intended to show that selfish interests prompted the major portion of the League opposition, were advanced by Homer S. Cummings, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, in an address delivered in the Circuit Court room of the courthouse this afternoon. Mr. Cummings took considerable time to compare the legislative records of the Democratic and Republican parties.

The meeting today was impromptu, called suddenly when it was learned Mr. Cummings was not to leave Columbia until 4:20 this afternoon. The court room was filled to capacity, in spite of the short notice given the public.

SENATOR REED HIRES A HALL

No Flowers, No Bands—Pays for Hall Himself and Is Sole Speaker.

By United Press.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 16.—Senator James A. Reed has something up his sleeve. His announcement today is puzzling politicians.

"I have rented Convention Hall at Kansas City, for Sunday, October 31," he said.

"I have paid for the hall myself. I intend to hold the meeting under my own auspices."

"There will be no presiding officials, no flowers, no bands, no admission charges, and no reserved seats. I have taken this course as the only perfect recourse by which I can freely discuss phases of the political situation."

"I assume full responsibility and intend to do all the talking myself."

"All citizens, men and women, are welcome."

Senator Reed is a bitter foe of the League of Nations. At present he is backing up Senator Spencer in a controversy with the White House over President Wilson's alleged promises to supply American military aid to preserve the territorial integrity of Rumania and Serbia.

Senator Reed was thrown out of the Democratic convention at San Francisco because of his fight on the League in Congress.

Forty Per Cent Drop in Both Men and Women's Apparel Reported in Kansas City.

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Food is leading other necessities in the downward trend of prices.

The level of prices paid to farmers showed a decline of 15.6 per cent during September, according to reports to the department of agriculture, covering virtually the entire country.

The consumers have already begun to benefit from the decline.

The price paid to farmers on October 1 averaged: White potatoes, $1.35 a bushel; sweet potatoes, $1.61 a bushel; apples, $1.35 a bushel; butter, 514 a pound; eggs, 501 a dozen; chickens, 264 a pound and wheat, $2.14 a bushel.

The retail price of clothing has joined more than 250 other commodities on the downward grade.

Numerous expressions of opinion from high government officials indicate that the price declines already reported are regarded as the beginning of a permanent decline of the general cost of living.

Governor Harding of the Federal Reserve Board, one of the officials who declared that the decline is permanent, said that the value of the dollar had already increased nearly 18 cents. The dollar is worth approximately 55 cents in comparison with its purchasing power of 1914. Two months ago it was worth 47 cents.

Admit Walk-Out Success Is Doubtful—No Disorders Anticipated.

By United Press.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—British miners are quitting work solidly today in answer to the strike call. Reports declare that the workers are swarming out of the mines, many of the men refusing to wait for the change of shifts. By mid-day more than a million miners and auxiliary workers were out. Only the pump and machinery engineers were on duty to keep the mines from flooding and to prevent the deterioration of the machinery.

Many of the men admit that they will probably be beaten but maintain that they can stay out at least six weeks. No disorders are anticipated.

Iron and steel plants in Yorkshire are reported to be closing down. Twenty thousand workers in one district are expected to be idle Monday. Electric signs in front of certain shops were ordered to be discontinued immediately. Families were instructed to reduce their consumption of coal a hundred weight a week and industries have been ordered to reduce their consumption of light and power.
